

UX / UI Designer (f/m/d)

Workpath is seeking an UX / UI Designer to lead our design-related efforts, including drafting, testing and iterating on appealing, consistent and intuitive visuals and experiences for our users. In this role, you will setup and maintain a component library and establish scalable design practices. As part of the core product team, you will define how hundreds of teams set goals and communicate progress in weekly conversations. Fundamentally, you'll strive to give teams more autonomy, participation and purpose at work and enable organisations to transform into networks of self-organised, interdisciplinary teams.

In this role you will:

- Craft design flows, prototypes, sketches and high-fidelity visuals for new features and improvements to the existing platform
- Collaborate with product managers and end users to discover user needs and work closely with engineers to ensure technical feasibility of your proposed solutions
- Establish and maintain a component design library, best practices and processes to ensure design consistency and scalability across multiple platforms and products
- Ensure that envisioned designs contribute towards the overall direction of the product

Here is what we are looking for:

- 5+ years experience with UI design for web applications and an in-depth understanding of modern UI patterns
- Ability to clearly communicate ideas and solutions to teams and customers in order to iterate on designs and solutions efficiently
- Fluent in written and spoken English; working on-site in Munich is a big plus
- 3+ years of expertise with relevant software (e.g. Sketch, InVision, etc.); additional experience with CSS and prototyping tools (e.g. Framer.js) is a plus

What you can expect:

- Be part of our lean, value-driven team where you co-shape the company
- Eat lunch together and join our team events
- Pick your own computer & accessories
- Flexible work arrangements (think: work-life balance, remote work, flexible hours)
